In elementary school I was in 6th grade so last year but I was in a 5th and 6th split class and there was this one 5th grader that was kinda annoying. Me and my friends would mind our own business and he would just distract all of us. One day the teacher told us to watch a movie and we had popcorn and then when the movie was does he had his bad and started hitting everyone on the head when he hit me I just stoped and looked at him he hit is head with his own bag we were laughing so hard I told my friends and we were talking about all the time and it was super funny. But the another day the teacher told us to do some stuff or word that we need to finish and lets call him Jacob (not his real name) Jacob was being rude and annoying to the teacher, also at lunch he swore not he top of his lungs outside and he got suspended and had to talk to the teacher, but one day lets call him jack (not his real name) he was being super rude and then my friend told his teacher and then his teacher got me and started to talk what happened and then he got in trouble and it was fine after that The End
